TEAMWORK

“With a background in coaching I think it is important to develop a team during the rehabilitation process with you being the most important player. I realize that no two people are the same so physical therapy should not be a generic process for every person. We will work together to custom tailor a rehabilitation program to suit your needs and desires with your goals being the primary focus. Increased motion or strength are useless if they are not applied in a meaningful way in your life. Together we will be a team with the aim of achieving your goals and returning you to your way of life.”

“I pride my use of treatment approaches that are scientifically proven and validated. I want to provide you with the best, most appropriate care while minimizing the use of unnecessary treatments that are not going to help you get better. To do this I keep up to date with the most current literature and studies pertaining to physical therapy.”

PERSONAL LOOK

Outside of physical therapy, Chris loves to spend time with his wife, Laura, and their chocolate lab, Roxy. He enjoys backpacking, skiing, biking and playing soccer. Chris is originally from Oklahoma so he relishes the opportunity to participate in the many activities available in Central Oregon.

“Physical therapy is an amazing profession. Every day it combines my interest of the human body and its processes with direct one on one contact with people.”
